

So far, no ear candle company has approval from the FDA. I assure you legal issues are always in writing as verbal assumptions are not admitted into a court of Law. We are fighting to obtain a legal opinion. The FDA will allow some companies to sell ear candles. In their most recent court document filed (in the public record):

The FDA states that consumers will not be affected by the FDA's actions against my company as their decision would not 'confer standing on the other plaintiffs (the consumers) in this case, any of whom could still obtain ear candles from the large number of remaining manufacturers of these products, and thus would suffer no cognizable injury in any event.' Page 16 – 17 Motion To Dismiss, filed June 10, 2010, Washington, DC.